Con Van Laerhoven, Agassiz-Harrison Community Services Society (left); Stephanie Cadieux, Minister of Social Development; Robert Waycott, board president for Mission Community Skills Centre; and MLA Marc Dalton cut the ribbon last Thursday to open the Mission WorkBC Employment Services Centre operated by the Fraser Valley Employment and Support Service Co-operative. The new centre in Hope will run out of Free Rein Associates, with a satellite office in Boston Bar at the Anderson Creek Health Centre. The new centres integrate all of the services that were run separately by the provincial and federal governments to make it easier for unemployed people to find work.
